DECATUR, ILLINOIS, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1889.

A few miles from the city of London resides a gentleman and his good wife, owning and tilling fifty acres of land.

The gentleman has always had great fath in his cows paying well, but thought the hens a bill of expense. The lady, on the other hand, contended that the hens paid better than the cows. Ac cordingly one spring she determined to keep books for one season and ascertain the respective ments of both. She credat the result, but most farmers do not give their hens credit for anything except what eggs are taken to market. It is not at all difficult to make hens pay

81 per head per annum if properly cared

$3 per head on five dark Brahma hens after paying all expenses. This, it will be understood, was per eggs and meat alone, not for breeding stock, as half a dollar was the highest price realized for Cannonading for Rain.

A rather neculiar petition was presented to the Kansas house by Mr. Sherman, of Rooks county. It was from 182 citizens of that county. They want the legislature to make an appropriation for the purpose of experimenting in the mat-ter of securing artificial rainfall by means of cannonading. The petition was as follows "We, your petitioners, many of us veterans of the late war, knowing from experience that heavy rainfalls followed each battle or heavy cannonading, and believing that this fact indicates that man may produce rainfall by artificial perturbation of the atmosphere when otherwise it would not be experienced, and believing it would be wise for the state of Kansas to make a reasonable experiment in the matter of attempting to produce artificial rainfall, would most respectfully ask you to make an appropriation out of the treasury for the purpose of such experiments either by cannonading or otherwise as may be deemed

A Queer Statue of Queen Victoria.

Everybody knows that the Princess Louise is not a mere amateur dabbier, but a real artist in sculpture, and the statue of the queen on which she is engaged, and which is to be elected in Kensington Gardens, between the palace and the round pond, will certainly be as daring in design as it will be novel. It she appeared on the memorable morning m June, 1837, when it was announced to her that she was queen of England. It will be remembered—Sir George Hayter's picture has commemorated it—that upon the occasion the Princess Victoria appeared in the scantiest of attire-a mere robe de nuit, with a shawl hastily flung over it. Rumor has it that the Princess Louise is succeeding in giving to this decidedly unconventional attire the appearance of quito classical drapery.

THE SLOYD SYSTEM.

IT IS BEING INTRODUCED INTO THE SCHOOLS OF ENGLAND.

The Object Is to Teach the Young How to Use Their Hands-Something Like Our Manual Training-Especially Beneficial to Girls of the Wealthy Families. An association has been formed in ited the hens with all eggs laid, and in-England for promoting the teaching of teresting indeed was the contest as the "sleyd." This new system has for some time crew nigh for receiving the check time past been an important factor in from the cheese factory. But it came at the educational systems of several counlast, and behold the hens were ahead. tries. The great beauty of it lies in the and so it continued throughout the seafact that it educates a child morally, physically and mentally. Sweden was the One hundred hens to three cows, and originator of this system of manual inas they had decided in the spring that it would cost about the same to keep each struction, which is not, as is frequently the gentleman was forced to yield the point and admit that the hens were most supposed, merely wood carving, but is the system applied to the different kinds profitable; and if others would keep an of handswork for educational purposes. exact account they would be surprised Slojd, the Scandinavian word, which is termed "sloyd" in England for convenience, means originally "cunning," "clever," "handy," The result at which the system specially aims is to implant respect for work in general, even for the coarser forms of manual labor; to develop activity, to foster order, cleanliness, neatness and accuracy; to encourage attention, industry and perseverance: to develop the physical powers and to train the eye and the sense of form. It is intended to teach all classes, from the highest to the lowest, how to use their hands as well as their heads, so that each man and woman may be placed in a position of independence and be capable of earning an honest livelihood.

II IS NOT LEARNING A TRADE. The first article which learners have to make is a little pointer, using merely a knife and glass paper, from such ar ticles they proceed to more difficult ones making tulers, inkstands, brackets, and

Attendance at the classes is volum tary on the part of pupils, so that there are certain conditions which the work must fulfill. It should be useful, and not too fatiguing, the articles made should offer variety, and should not be articles of fuxiny; they should be accomplished without help, and they should be real work and not play A necessary feature, too is that they should demand thoughtfulness and not be purely mechanical work. Many will no doubt here say "It is nothing more nor less than ordinary expentering. "

On consideration, however, it will be found there are several differences. First and foremost comes the difference in the object of sloyd, which is not to turn out young carpenters, but to develop the faculties, and especialty to give general dextenty, which will be of value no matter what line o' life the pupil may afterwards pursue. Other differences are the character of the objects made, which are usually smaller than those made in the trade; the tools used, the knite, for instance—the most important of all in sloyd—is little used in ordinary carpentery; and lastly, the reviner of working is not the same; the division of labor employed in the carpentering trade is not allowed in sloyd, where each article is executed entucly by each pupil.

Trusney has almost been done away with in Swedish schools since the intro-duction of sloyd. It has been found in all the schools where it has been introduced that greater and more intelligent progress has been made in the ordinary school work. It makes children think for themselves. The system demands individual supervision and instruction, which is an advantage, as the teacher i enabled to gain an insight into the character, and to establish a personal relation petween himself and his pupils.

THE CITTETS MENTALLY. In regard to the statement that it momotes the physical, mental and moral development, we find that morally it implants respect and love for work in general; it strengthens the bond between home and school, and it fosters a sense of satisfaction in honest work, begun, carried on and completed by fair means. Mentally, sloyd acts in drawing out and exercising energy, perseverance, order, accuracy and the habit of attention; it causes pupils to rely on themselves, to exercise forethought, and to be constantly putting two and two together Physically, the system brings into action all the muscles, and exercises both sides of Pupils work with the left hand and arm, as well as with the right, in sawing, planing, etc. Sloyd is particularly useful to the ands of our higher schools, and is more important for them than their sisters of the working classes. The former are sadly in want of some interesting active work to counterbalance the continual sitting and point over books and evertises. Besides the general development it turnishes, the positive knowledge gained is of the greatest service, and serves to stimulate a growing experience of sympathy with men's work, The first course for training teachers in England commenced in August, 1888, at the Ladies' college at Sydenham, which has been kindly lent for the pur-pose. Hitherto, those who would be teachers of sloyd have had to travel to the seminary at Maas, on the beautiful shores of Lake Savelangen; and after going through the course there, have had to face the difficulty of applying the system to English tastes and customs. Now they will not have quite so long a journey to undertake to gain instruction; and the knowledge they do gain will be such as they can impart straight away to pupils. In order to counteract the evil of spurious teachers cropping up, there will be inspectors appointed who will be allowed to visit any places where sloyd is taught at any time, to see that the system is carried out properly and faithfully -Chambers' Journal.

CLOTH MADE FROM WOOD.

Method of Reducing the Boards to a Stat Mitscherlich has applied the bisulphite process for reducing wood to the production of a fiber from wood which car be spun.
Thin boards or laths free from knots, but of any desired width, are cut into strips in the direction parallel with the grain, and are then boiled in a boiler containing a solution of sulphurous acid or binaphite. This boiling effects disinte-gration without requiring that the strips of boards shall be reduced to very small pieces. After boiling the wood, it is dried in the open air or in specially constructed drying rooms. By thus drying the product, the fiber, which is originally very weak and tends to break at the slightest strain, becomes comparatively strong and does not resume its very breakable condition on the addition of water. The operations are carried out as

The damp masses on the frame are transferred to a traveling endless cloth, which leads them to a pair of rollers, wh n may be plain or provided with corrugations in the direction of their length, the ribs of the one roller being made to gear into the recesses of the other one, whereby they effect a simultaneous strong bending and squeezing of the masses The cutting of the material in passing through the corrugated rollers is avoided by causing the endless cloth to pass- over the lower roller and placing a canvas covering around the upper roller. The pressed masses fall from these rollers on to a second endless cloth, which conveys them to a second pair of rollers, from which they are conveyed to a third pair, and so on, they being preferably pressed in this way six times. By continued treat-ment of the wood the fibers become at length so pliable and isolated from each other that they can be employed directly for coarse filaments.

For obtaining a perfect isolation of the fibers, however, without material deterioration, these operations alone are not suitable, and their special purpose is to loosen the fibers in the transverse direction, so that in the following opera-tion a thin, long fiber may be obtained. For this purpose the boiled and pressed masses are completely dried. After drying they are combed in the direction parallel with the fibers by means of devices provided with pins or teeth, in a manner similar to the operations for combing flax, cotton, etc., but with the difference that the pins or teeth of the apparatus must be made very strong The separation of the extractable matter from the filer produced by bottling the gums and soluble organic matter can be effected at any time. It is, however, preferably effected after the fiber has been spun into threads, etc.—Scientific

A Madman's Ingenuity. John B. Leoni a young sculptor, whose parents are supposed to reside in Jersey City, who for some time has been an inmate of an asylum, escaped from his keepers some time ago and wandered to Burlington, N. J., where a lively interest was taken in him. He was found roaming annlessly around the streets, and, pending the result of inquiries as to his identity, was placed in the city

Shortly after his incarceration Leoni obtained possession of a piece of soap and proceeded to astonish the jailers. With his finger nails he dexterously began carving the soap and gradually it assumed human shape. When through labor Leoni had pr an Alpine huntsman. The figure, which is now in possession of Mayor Silpath, is about seven inches in height. The right arm is outstretched, the band encircling the neck of a duck, which is as carefully reproduced as the figure of the hunter. The left hand hangs by the side, holding a shotgun. At the feet of the hunter lies the figure of a retriever, wistfully gazing at the game his master Leoni is said to have a brother in this

Secret Hiding Places.

One of the most interesting features of our country houses is the secret hiding place. This generally has been contrived with much architectural skill, and in days gone by baffled discovery from the most observant and experienced eve. In certain cases it would appear that, for some reason or other, the hiding place has been specially kept a secret among members of the family. Thus, in the north of England, may be mentioned Netherhall, near Maryport, Cumberland, the seat of the old family of Senhouse. In this time honored mansion there is said to be a real secret chamber, its exact position being only known to two persons

-the heir-in-law and the family solicitor. According to the popular tradition the secret of the hidden room has never been revealed to more than two living persons at a time! This mysterious room has no window, and, despite every endeavor to discover it, has, it is said, defied the ingenuity of every visitor staying in the house. With this secret chamber may be compared the one at Glamis, the latter possessing a window, but which has not led to the identification of the mys terious room.—Liverpool Courier.

The Prince of Coolavin. We are told of McDermot, known as the Prince of Coolavin, who belonged to one of the principal Connaught families, that his income in 1776 barely amounted to £100 a year, yet he never suffered his children to sit down in his presence Lady Morgan adds that his daughter-inlaw alone was permitted to eat at his table, even his wife was not accorded this privilege, as, though well born, she was not of royal blood. When Lord Kinga-berough, Mr. Ponsonby, Mr. O'Hara, Mr. Sanford, and others, all men of position, came to see him he only took notice of the two last named, whom he thus addiessed: "O'Hara, you are welcome!
Sanford, I am glad tosee your mother's

The leave taking to Rev W. H. Prest ley, who has been the faithful pastor of the Presbyteman church for about 13 years, and is soon to sever his connection with the congregation, is of a very touch ing character, finding expression in personal gifts to the clergyman. At the meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society Monday night at the church the Juniors through Abbie Foote presented the Seniors with a splendid crayon portrait of Rev. Prestley enclosed in a massive oak frame. It was received with thanks by Miss Lillie Brown and placed in the meeting room. After a brief conal the company dispersed, the young people assembling at the home of the pastor where he was surprised to find them in there in company with Rev. Edward Walker, of Evansville, Ind. The presence of the young people meant some-Jesse Terrell has gone to Springfield to | thing and the purpose was quickly developed when Miss Brown presented Rev. Prestley with a beautiful gift in the form of a plush photograph case inscribed with he letters "Y. P S. C. E." The case enclosed the cabinet photographs of every member of the society with autographs beneath. The present is one highly prized by Rev Prestley, who in the responsive address acknowledged his gratitude for the kindly remembrance in touching language. It was a bright evening in the history of the society, for all felt that they were contributing to the pleasure of the clergyman.

'HOME COMFORT" FURNACES.

NO GAS, No Dust,

Wrought Steel, Malleable Iron, Very Little Fuel, No Leaky Joints.

No one can say that the time was not ripe for a new furnace. The days of brittle, porous, cast iron furnaces are numbered. In every branch of manufacture cast iron is being driven out by wrought iron and steel Every bridge that goes down in a wreck of lives and property is found to have cast it on members. Every bursting cannon which slays its friends rather than its enemies is made of cast iron. Every leaky furnace which poisons a household with its noisome gases is found to be made of the same cheap, unreliable material. Improved methods of manufacture have made steel and iron plate, of first quality, less expensive than cast iron formerly was, and it is plainly in accord with progress in other directions that there should be progress both in design and the material of furnaces for warming our homes, churches and schools.
